Truman May Make More Cabinet Shifts

FOUR NEW FACES AMONG AIDES TO PRESIDENT

Hopkins Sent To Moscow On Special Mission; He May Leave Post

FDR INTIMATES TO GO

New Deal Counsellors Said To Be On Way Out Of Washington Jobs

WASHINGTON, May 24—President Truman has released four of the 10 cabinet members he inherited from Franklin D. Roosevelt, and insiders said today that several more were slated to go.

The postoffice, justice, agriculture and labor departments have been affected so far. Changes also are taking place among the even more intimate advisers of the late President Roosevelt.

The net effect appears to be a potentially more conservative administration.

Resignation On File

In announcing the cabinet changes at his news conference yesterday Mr. Truman said he had resignations on file from every official who can resign. He remarked that he could accept them at will.

With the cabinet shake-up came announcement that Harry L. Hopkins had been sent to Moscow on a "special diplomatic mission."

The language of the announcement permitted the assumption that Hopkins might not return to his job as "special assistant to the President."

The White House shakeup has just begun. Most of the Roosevelt intimates will go, it is understood here. Judge Samuel I. Rosenman of New York, special counsel to the late President Roosevelt, will abandon his White House desk by June 15. He plans to open law offices in New York.

Niles Leaving

David K. Niles of Massachusetts, one of the political manipulators among Mr. Roosevelt's White House associates, also is understood to be on the way out. Hopkins probably will begin to fade from the political scene when his diplomatic duties are discharged. His mission to Moscow appears to be to seek some mutual agreement with Marshal Josef V. Stalin on some of the points covered by the last big three conference at Yalta.

Hopkins accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on all such expeditions. He already has left for Moscow.

Davies To London

The White House also announced today that Davies is to go to London.

YANK REINFORCEMENTS SPEED OKINAWA ADVANCES

AMERICAN SIEGE LINES forming about Shuri (1) on Okinawa began to tighten forcibly as fresh U. S. troops joined those already engaged in overcoming Jap defenders. Shuri had already been flanked on the east and west and our forces were battling furiously to encircle it. The fortified town of Taira (2), one of the main fortifications outside Shuri, had been taken. Meanwhile, units of the 96th Division opened a power drive down the east coast toward the port of Yonabaru (3). Sixth Division Marines strengthened their positions in the north section of Naha (4), the island's capital, already flattened by bombs and shells. (International)

Permanent Authority To Make Executive Changes Sought By President

WASHINGTON, May 24—President Truman today asked congress for permanent authority to undertake continuous, progressive reorganization of the executive branch of the government in accordance with changing needs.

He sent a message to the congress asking its cooperation in steps "to make the executive branch more business-like and efficient."

Technically what the President asked was legislation generally similar to the reorganization act of 1939 and a section of the first war powers act of 1941 which empowers the President to make necessary adjustments in the executive organization.

The 1939 reorganization act provides that the President shall notify congress of the changes which he has ordered, with the alteration subject to disapproval by a majority of each of the two houses within 60 days.

The first war powers act went further, enabling the President to make additional temporary improvements in the organization of the government. Changes under this legislation, however, automatically revert to the former status six months after the termination of hostilities.

The President said such automatic reversion was unworkable and would result "in the re-establishment of some agencies that should not be re-established."

The President said that, aside from disposition of the war organization of the government, other adjustments were needed currently and continuously and that congress could not "deal effectively with numerous organization problems on an individual item basis."

"Experience has demonstrated that if substantial progress is to be made in these regards, it must be made on a continuing basis." (Continued on Page Two)

NAVY ANNOUNCES LOSS OF MOTOR MINE SWEEPER

WASHINGTON, May 24—The Navy today announced the loss of a motor mine sweeper in the Philippines as a result of enemy action.

The YMS-481, which carried the normal complement of 30 men, suffered moderate personnel casualties, the Navy said. Next of kin of casualties have been notified.

Skipper of the vessel was Lt. (J. G.) Theron O. Anglin, Wadley, Ga., who is reported wounded in action.

Loss of the motor mine sweeper brings to 309 the number of naval vessels lost from all causes in this war.

The YMS-481, a 136-foot, 207-ton craft, was built by the Bellingham Iron Works, Inc., Bellingham, Wash. It was commissioned April 21, 1944.

BIG 3 MEETING 'IN THE WORKS'

Hopkins And Davies May Lay Groundwork For Session While In Europe

WASHINGTON, May 24—The White House said today that a big three meeting is "definitely in the works."

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross emphasized that the London and Moscow diplomatic missions of Joseph E. Davies and Harry L. Hopkins, announced by Mr. Truman yesterday, do not in any way take the place of the projected big three meeting.

Both President Truman and Prime Minister Winston Churchill recently have expressed desire for a meeting with Premier Josef Stalin, but Ross' statement was the first official revelation that plans for such a conference were "in the works."

Hopkins, for years the late President Roosevelt's most intimate advisor, and Davies, former U. S. ambassador to Russia, will undertake their missions as "part of the general pattern of the coming big three conference," Ross said.

This apparently means that they will lay the groundwork for the Stalin-Truman-Churchill meeting on the subject of which only Stalin thus far has remained silent.

While he said he had no idea of when and where the big three will get together, Ross said he did not believe the British elections in July would affect the date of the conference.

Asked whether this meant that a definite decision had been reached, (Continued on Page Two)

COSTELLO AND ABBOTT COMEDY TEAM IN SPLIT

HOLLYWOOD, May 24—Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, who slappedstick their way from cheap burlesque to million-dollar movies, today announced they were splitting up.

As soon as possible, they said, they would embark separate careers.

Abbott will be funny—but not in the same picture. As a team, they insisted, they are dearer than the jokes they used on one-night stands.

"We've been offered a new five-year contract by Universal," Costello said. "And they included our manager Eddie Sherman in on the deal."

"Eddie's been our pal ever since we started," he said. "He gave us our first break in show business and he's stuck with us for 15 years. He really deserves to share our success."

Costello said he signed the contract just as soon as he read it but Abbott refused to add his name.

Now the two comedians aren't speaking to each other any oftener than they have to in front of a camera or a mike.

LOVE-HUNGRY SAILOR TOSSES BOY INTO LAKE

NEW YORK, May 24—Donald Fifer, 18, a sailor, heaved an 11-year-old boy into Central Park lake last night—for reasons.

A policeman who witnessed the heave-ho arrested Fifer on a felonious assault charge. Fifer explained in the police line-up today:

"I was seated on the bench with my girl friend. I wanted to get in as much loving as I could. I only had a 48-hour pass and two kids kept running around the bench."

The one Fifer grabbed scrambled out of the shallow water to safety. Fifer gave his address as Enid, Okla.

ALLIES SEARCH FOR HIMMLER, VON RIBBENTROP

Gestapo Chief And Foreign Minister Only Nazi Chiefs Not Accounted For

STREICHER IS CAPTURED

Von Friedberg, Navy Leader, Commits Suicide After Arrest At Flensburg

PARIS, May 24—Allied troops searched today for Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler and former German foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, believed to be the only ranking Nazis still alive and at large.

The German high command, Admiral Karl Doenitz and 300 other lesser officers, were arrested yesterday to complete the roundup of live Nazi bigwigs, excluding Himmler and Ribbentrop.

Himmler last was reported hiding in the Austrian tyrol and American task forces have been searching for him there for the past two weeks.

The notorious Nazi Jew-baiter, Julius Streicher, was captured by the American 101st airborne division on a farm near Walden, about 40 miles west of Berchtesgaden.

Streicher, sporting a white beard, was found with a handsome young woman. On his orders, she laced his shoes before he was taken away by American soldiers led by (Continued on Page Two)

ALLIES STUDY ANSWER TO NOTE FROM YUGOSLAVS

ROME, May 24—The Allies were expected today to answer soon Marshal Tito's proposals for working out the Trieste problem.

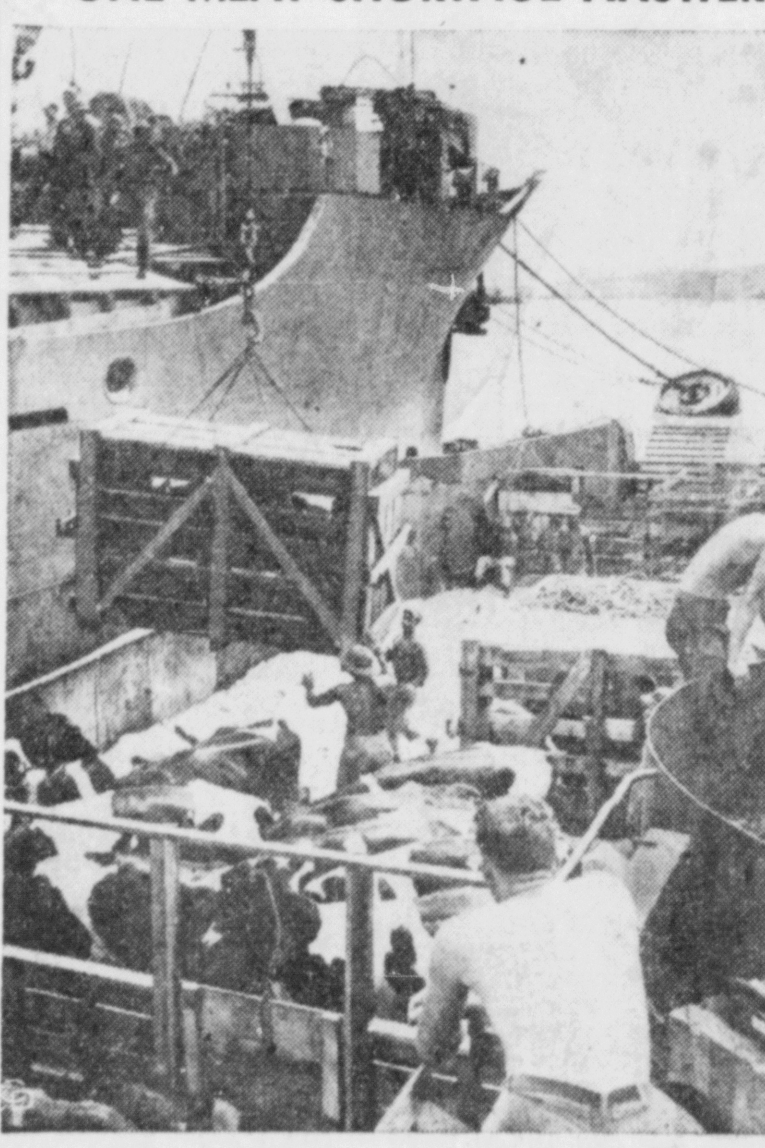

One of the difficulties was said to be Tito's desire to leave Yugoslav personnel in key posts in the disputed Italian province of Venezia Giulia. It was believed the Allies would demand that the only Tito men left behind be natives of the district.

Tito's latest note to the American and British governments was considered conciliatory but not entirely satisfactory. However, reliable sources said the Yugoslav note virtually assured peaceful settlement of the Trieste problem, which has been the major threat to European peace since the surrender of Germany.

The details of how Allied military government officials were to work with Tito's men remained to be worked out.

It was learned that Allied troops advanced to new lines in the Trieste area under a dusk to dawn covering umbrella of spitfires from the RAF desert air force, operating from Klagenfurt, disputed capital of Carinthia.

Motorists To Get More Gas Next Month But Not Enough For Joy Riding

WASHINGTON, May 24—That extra gasoline motorists were promised after V-E day will come to them in June. But it won't be enough to do much extra joyriding.

"A" gasoline rations will be increased only about a gallon a week. "B" rations will be increased, but only if card holders can demonstrate increased need to their local ration boards.

Announcement of the increase was made jointly by Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes and the Office of Price Administration. Ickes said he took "great satisfaction" in giving civilians more gasoline for the first time since rationing began in July, 1941.

"We in the petroleum administration have looked forward to this day for a long time," he said. "The victory in Europe, together with the amazing performance of the petroleum industry, makes it possible."

Canadians got a similar increase, effective immediately. It amounts to a 33 1/3 per cent boost for all types of coupon holders.

Throughout the United States, "A" rations will be increased 50 per cent on June 22 when A-16 coupons become valid. This means the values of each of the new coupons will go up from four to six gallons. Six coupons are validated at a time, all good for three months.

"B" rations will be increased a little earlier—on June 11—by varying degrees throughout the (Continued on Page Two)

CHURCHILL MAY NAME SON TO CABINET POST

LONDON, May 24—Prime Minister Churchill sat up most of last night selecting his new cabinet, but political observers believed he would not make any sensational changes.

One appointment rumored in Whitehall circles was that Churchill would name his son, Major Randolph Churchill, to succeed Major Arthur Henderson as financial secretary to the war office. Major Churchill returned from the Middle East last week.

Churchill was expected to name a number of young members of parliament, who have not held office previously, to junior posts vacated by members of the dissenting labor party. The aim would be to give new blood to the cabinet and cabinet experience to the new blood.

4,400 OHIOANS MADE IDLE BY WAR CUTBACKS

COLUMBUS, May 24—Ohio War Manpower Commission Director John L. Craig announced today that approximately 4,400 Ohioans have been laid off as a result of war contract cutbacks since V-E day.

Craig said existing war plant needs, estimated at approximately 39,000 essential workers, far exceeded available unemployed workers.

The director said that "only 47 industries found it necessary to lay off workers" to adjust production schedules although there were 200 war contract cancellations during May.

CARRIER PLANES OPEN ATTACK ON SUICIDE BASES

Industrial Waterfront Of Tokyo Still Blazing From Record B-29 Attack

GREATEST FIRE RAID

700,000 Incendiary Bombs Rained On Nip Capital By 550 Superforts

Tenth army forces on Okinawa drove beyond the Asato river to within 1,200 yards of the heart of Naha today and gained more than a mile in a powerful new drive to encircle bitterly-defended Shuri.

To the northeast, Radio Tokyo said, 180 American carrier planes began an attack on suicide-plane bases on the Japanese home island of Kyushu at 3 p. m. Japanese time today. Tokyo said "relatively light" damage resulted.

The industrial waterfront of Tokyo itself was blazing from a record 4,500-ton pre-dawn Superfortress raid. The fires were visible 200 miles at sea.

Near Junction

The battle of the Philippines flickered on in Mindanao, southernmost of the archipelago, where two converging American columns were only eight miles from a junction that would split the island lengthwise and doom its scattered defenders.

A Japanese Domei dispatch said 23 American B-24 Liberators raided Japanese installations on Singapore yesterday for the first time. It gave no clue as to the possible base of the Liberators. Singapore is beyond the range of known Liberator bases.

On Okinawa, the sixth Marine division in the west and the Seventh Army division in the east were forging a new trap around the inland citadel of Shuri and probably the bulk of the island's 30,000 remaining defenders.

Push Nearer Shuri

The sixth sent one column across the Asato river deep into the ruins of the capital city of Naha and another knifing southeast toward the rear approaches to Shuri. The seventh drove 2,000 yards into the Japanese flank from the captured east coast port of Yonabaru and may reach a point due south of Shuri today.

Three other American divisions virtually were stalemated in their frontal assault on Shuri's powerful defenses. One division hurled back 1,000 counter-attacking Japanese after an all-day battle in which the enemy penetrated the American lines up to 600 yards. Some 150 Japanese were killed.

Naha yet may fall without a major battle. A patrol which pushed across the Asato in advance of the Marines' main crossing found neither mines nor prepared positions.

The possibility still remained, however, that the Japanese garrison (Continued on Page Two)

QUISLING WILL RECEIVE POLICE COURT HEARING

OSLO, May 24—Norwegian attorney general Sven Arntzen said today that Vidkun Quisling, Norway's No. 1 traitor, will be given a police court preliminary hearing this week.

However, Arntzen would not say at a press conference what the eventual charge against Quisling will be, or when his trial will hold.

Arntzen did say that Gestapo agents and Germans found guilty of such crimes as looting, murder, and torture would be held in Norway and tried in Norwegian civil courts.

The attorney general also said all members of Quisling's Norwegian Nazi party would be subject to punishment under a 1902 common crime law because they aided the enemy. The penalties range from three years imprisonment to death.

FOUR NEW FACES AMONG AIDES TO PRESIDENT

nounced that Joseph E. Davies, one of the wealthiest Democrats, shortly would depart on a special temporary diplomatic mission to London. Davies long has been eager for the permanent ambassadorial post there. The Davies-Hopkins mission seemed in some ways to be make-shift substitutes for an immediate big three meeting.

Congress uniformly applauded the cabinet changes announced yesterday at Mr. Truman's news conference. There were cheers for the announcement that responsibilities of the secretary of agriculture and the war food administrator hereafter would be given one individual.

The cabinet changes—with more to come—sharply shifted the center of administration gravity toward the west. The three changes announced yesterday were:

Attorney General Francis Biddle, Pennsylvania, to be succeeded June 30 by Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark of Texas.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard, of Indiana, to be succeeded by Rep. Clinton P. Anderson, D. N. M. Anderson will take over as soon as Wickard can be confirmed as rural electrification administrator, a post to which the President immediately will nominate him.

Mrs. Perkins Out

Secretary Frances Perkins, of New York, to be succeeded by Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwabach of Washington state. Schwabach, a staunch new dealer, was Mr. Truman's senate counselor prior to his nomination to the bench.

Resignation of Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, of Pennsylvania, was announced last month. He will be succeeded June 30 by a Missourian, Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic national committee.

Hannegan's nomination has been confirmed by the senate which must also confirm all three new nominations before they can become effective.

Also announced yesterday was the resignation of Judge Marvin Jones, of Texas, as war food administrator. Jones will return to his post as a judge on the court of claims.

Ikies Still Around

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ikies is the last remaining survivor of the original Roosevelt cabinet which took office in March, 1933. Miss Perkins also was a Roosevelt original.

Speculation regarding further resignations involved Ikies and, in fact, every other holdover cabinet member except Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace.

Good politics would require Mr. Truman to keep Wallace even if he did not want him. However there is no particular evidence that the Iowan is an unwelcome guest.

There is no doubt that Wallace speaks for and can lead a considerable body of left wing voters. A vigorous Wallace bolt would pretty surely prevent the election of a democratic presidential candidate in 1948, Wallace's job is safe.

Mr. Truman was asked about the state and treasury departments at his news conference yesterday. He said he would not have accepted secretary of treasury Henry Morgenthau's resignation if it had been offered. He said he contemplated no changes at the state department.

But Morgenthau is believed to be one of those slated ultimately to go. There would be no change, of course, during a war bond drive such as that now under way.

Stettinius May Go

There is considerable pressure on the President also to find other employment for Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., principally because he has no established party organization identity and would succeed to the White House in the event of Mr. Truman's death.

It would be no reflection on Stettinius if he were relieved under such circumstances. If he goes it will be after senate action on the San Francisco conference agreement.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson at 77 is the oldest cabinet member. He is full of honors and would not care a snap of his fingers if he were relieved as long as his successor was a competent man. Stimson also is from New York.

It is a fact that there has been great southern and western Democratic protest against the number of easterners in the cabinet as Mr. Roosevelt maintained it during the past few years. But removing a Republican from a war cabinet would not be good politics unless it were at the cabinet member's insistence.

Ikies probably has offended more congressmen than any other country, bringing them everywhere up to a new countrywide ceiling allotment of 650 miles a month. Rations in the East will go up 100 per cent from 325 to 650 miles a month; in the Midwest they will increase from 475 to 650 miles a month; and in the far West they'll go up from 400 to 650 miles a month.

OPA Chief Chester Bowles, who said he shared Ikies' "pleasure" in announcing the boost, warned that OPA would check carefully to see that only those getting extra "B" rations would get them.

"Many 'B' ration holders now have all the gasoline they need," he said. "Unfortunately there is not enough gasoline to give them more than the increase in their 'A' rations.

"But those who do need more gasoline will be able to get it by applying to their local war price and rationing boards after June 11 and showing their need for it up to a ceiling of 650 miles a month."

Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies stated that at least 20 days would be needed to gear manufacturing, transportation and distribution facilities to move the increased supplies to service stations.

He said the extra supply could not be guaranteed at all times and must always "remain dependent upon changes in military demands."

He said total petroleum needs of the stepped-up Pacific war would exceed the requirements of the two-front war waged in the past but that fuel oil was now the biggest need in the Pacific while the demand for gasoline had declined.

"To meet the full military demand and provide this additional quantity to the civilian economy the productive capacity of the United Nations will continue to be taxed to its present limits," he added.

Deaths—Funerals

WILLIAMS RITES

Burial was made in Forest cemetery here Wednesday afternoon following services at the Church of Christ in Chillicothe for Mrs. Alice Williams, 65, wife of David R. Williams.

Mrs. Williams died at her home in Chillicothe Sunday. Besides her husband she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Wesley Daubenspire, Lancaster and Mrs. John Thomas Rock, Columbus; a son, Maurice Williams, Nelsonville; two sisters, Mrs. E. V. Rutter, St. Petersburg, Fla., Mrs. Ollie Smith, Jr., Lancaster and a brother, Charles Curry, Buckeye Lake.

HERMAN FUNERAL

Funeral services for Etta M. Herman, 67, wife of William J. Herman who died at her home, Livingston Ave., Columbus, Monday were held in St. John's church, Columbus, Thursday.

Mrs. Herman was a native of Pickaway county and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Carl who resided near Williamsport.

Surviving are her husband who is a brother of the late Father Joseph Herman, former pastor of St. Joseph's church here, a son Richard Herman, three grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. John Engler, Columbus and Sister Adeline of the Dominican Sister of St. Mary's of the Springs, Columbus. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery at Shadyside.

Mrs. John F. Carl, Mrs. Charles Carl and Mrs. George W. Snider, Circleville attended the funeral.

ed on the big three meeting, Ross said "it is being projected."

Ross would not reveal the exact nature of the Hopkins and Davies missions but said they were both important.

Asked about Hopkins' health, which has been poor to the point of requiring hospitalization in recent months, Ross said Hopkins' condition was "good enough to enable him to undertake the trip."

Ross had no information on reports that plans had been made for a meeting between the President and Gen. Charles DeGaulle.

cabinet member. He is 71 years old, rich, and happily married to a pretty young wife.

Like Wallace Ikies carries weight with the new deal political left. If Ikies goes it might be to make a place for Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D. Wyo.

The Navy is running sweet and pretty under Secretary James V. Forrestal of New York. The only excuse for bouncing him would be to make a place for a regular organization Democrat. That might be difficult to justify in time of war.

2 NEW HOLLAND SOLDIERS FREED FROM POW CAMPS

Good news reached New Holland in person and by letter this past week. Mr. and Mrs. John Live-say had their son, Kenneth Live-say, come home to them. He had been a prisoner of war in Germany since February 17, 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. John Persinger received a letter written V-E day from their son, John W. Persinger, that he had been liberated April 22 by the Russian Army. He had been captured during the African campaign February 17, 1943. He had been overseas one day less than a year when captured. He wrote while he was waiting for air transportation to return him to the American Army forces.

Both boys are in good health and very happy to be free men again.

CABINET WAS NEAR FLIGHT

available for action, had less than half of its rated strength of 500-odd tanks. The few existing field regiments had one 25-pound gun apiece—they were supposed to have 24 each. Most of them had little or no ammunition.

On the southeast coast, the most logical ground for the invasion, the defending troops were distributed at the rate of one infantry brigade to 25 miles, or 43 men to the mile.

Britain's defense plan, it can now be revealed, consisted of a "crust" of resistance along the coast, backed up by anti-tank islands at all important communications points. Then a network of barriers were made by living rivers and canals with anti-tank traps and finally the mobile reserves.

The remnants of these defenses are still visible today. Their inadequacy is tragically evident.

Backing the military defense plan was a complicated civilian defense scheme that in itself showed the determination of these islanders to fight on no matter how hopeless it appeared.

All sign posts and street identification signs were moved. This later caused endless confusion among American troops training in the coastal areas. Civilians were taught how to make their cars useless to the invader, and were given instructions on how and when to destroy key installations such as telephone exchanges, broadcasting stations, gasoline stations, piers and anything that might be of aid to the enemy.

The home guard trained frantically by day and spent the nights checking false parachute scares. King George VI practiced with his Tommy-gun at Buckingham palace. Then it was that the cabinet met to discuss removing the government to Canada, and that Churchill held his intimates he would go into the streets with a gun before he would leave England.

That was the picture when Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering ordered his Luftwaffe to destroy the RAF and blast a path into England for the Wehrmacht invaders.

But the RAF's gallant fighters were too much for them. The Germans lost 130, 150, as many as 180 planes in a single day, and Britain's leaders slowly became certain that Hitler could no more cross the channel than could Napoleon before him.

The battle in the skies had barely reached its climax when Churchill rose in commons to pay his tribute: "Never in the history of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

The battle of Britain had been won.

CHICAGO TRUCK DRIVERS RETURN TO VITAL JOBS

CHICAGO, May 24—Raise-seeking Chicago truck drivers were returning to their war-vital jobs today to end a paralyzing week-long strike called off less than six hours before the government was to have seized trucking lines involved.

Officials of the Independent Chicago truck drivers union ordered the 6,500 strikers back to work shortly after President Truman authorized the Office of Defense Transportation to take over as of 12:01 today.

The President's order came while an estimated 1,500 specially-detailed troops camped on the shores of Lake Michigan ready to seize and operate the 10,000 trucks idled by the walkout, which halted deliveries of food, drugs and war material in the Chicago area.

son may have gone underground and permitted the patrol to roam the streets unmolested in an effort to draw the main Marine force into a trap.

Bombs Fall 105 Minutes

Tokyo's industrial waterfront district of Shingawara south of the imperial palace was fired by 700, 000 incendiary bombs dropped by a 200-miles-long train of B-29s in 105 minutes early today. More than 550 Superfortresses, the biggest force ever sent aloft, participated in the raid.

It was the greatest fire raid ever made and exceeded in weight even the heaviest American demolition raid on Germany. The RAF still holds the all-time record, however, with a 5,600-ton demolition attack on Dortmund March 12.

Japs Admit Fires

A Japanese communique admitted some fires burned on more than five and a half hours after the raid. Tokyo broadcasts said the Singaku temple of the Ronins and an "establishment" on the grounds of the Akasaka detached palace, used to house visiting royalty, had been destroyed.

An arbor in the imperial palace grounds also was attacked, Tokyo said.

Tokyo also said other bombers attacked Yokohama, Kawasaki, Shizuoka and Hamamatsu, along the coast southwest of Tokyo.

A southeast Asia command communique said British 14th army forces were in contact with a strong Japanese force 10 miles northwest of Pegu, a railway town 40 miles northeast of Rangoon.

Patrolling and mopping up operations continued elsewhere in central Burma, the communique said.

On Mindanao, the Japanese were making no serious effort to halt the closing American pincers. Apparently conscious of the hopelessness of their stand, they were reported retiring to the hills for a final stand.

"If the central Mindanao gap is closed, the Japs will have lost everything worth holding in that area," Gen. Douglas MacArthur said.

On Luzon, other American forces began burning the Japanese east of the Marikina watershed and hills east of Manila and battled to clear the Cagayan valley in the north.

WASHINGTON, May 24—The house banking committee approved the Bretton Woods agreements by a 23 to 3 vote today, giving the administration a thumping first round victory on that sector of its foreign policy front.

"Excellent Progress" On Trusteeship Problem Reported At Conference

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24—The big five powers edged toward an agreement on the delicate trusteeship problem today while the "little" United Nations waited for the big ones to define when and where they will use their veto in the proposed world security organization.

Authoritative sources said "excellent progress" had been made on trusteeships during the last 24 hours and that agreement on virtually all issues was near. The major stumbling block is whether independence for all dependent peoples shall be written in specifically as an objective.

The big four sponsoring powers are being catechized by the others on interpretation of the so-called Yalta voting formula for the security council. Under it the permanent members of the council would have a veto over virtually every decision and action of the council. Twenty-two questions by the little nations on when and where that veto would be likely to be used still remain unanswered.

The big powers' answers will go far in determining to what extent the little nations will push their fight for modification of the voting formula, to which the big four are committed. It is possible that the answers will, by interpretation, so modify the formula that the little nations will abandon their fight. The most the little nations can expect would be: Modification of the right of the big powers to veto arrangements for "peaceful settlements" in cases when the big powers are not involved in a dispute. Abandonment by the big five of the right to veto any proposed amendment to the world organization's charter. This contains the seed of a possible compromise on the whole voting issue.

The trusteeship committee, on which Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen is the U. S. representative, approved five sections of the "working paper" on a trusteeship system late last night. The major accomplishment was the dropping of a Russian suggestion that designation of strategic areas in trusteeships be on recommendation of the security council.

The conference as a whole is moving ahead rapidly and officials have high hope that the conference will be ready for President Truman to close it the first week in June.

Announcement that the President would come here in person gave the delegates a big lift.

Now More Than Ever—Your Appliances Need Extra Care

YOUR electric servants have made a noble contribution to the war effort—by saving time and energy—by helping to conserve food—by safeguarding your family's welfare. After more than three years of wartime wear and tear, however, they "ain't what they used to be." To continue serving faithfully until new ones are available, they will require better care than ever before. By following the simple suggestions listed below, you'll not only give your appliances a new lease on life but also obtain better service.

To Keep Them on the Job for the Duration:

- ★ Avoid running vacuum cleaner over metal objects. Clean bag, brushes and attachments frequently. Replace brushes if worn.
- ★ Oil appliances according to manufacturers' instructions.
- ★ Keep appliances clean. Dirt, dust and food can cause trouble.
- ★ Never submerge an electrical appliance in water.
- ★ Keep cords free from oil, moisture, kinks, knots and frayed spots.
- ★ Make minor repairs yourself. If something serious goes wrong, call your appliance dealer.

LOCKBOURNE IS GIVEN CITATION

OPA Presents Certificate Recognizing Efficient Transportation Plan

Lockbourne Army Air Base received a citation from the Office of Price Administration Wednesday in recognition of its adoption and efficient operation of an organized transportation plan which has resulted in the highest number of riders per automobile in the Columbus OPA district.

Among the 377 war-essential plants and installation comprising the district, Lockbourne was one of the 18 to receive certificates of merit. The certificate, signed by Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, was presented by John H. Summers, district director, and accepted by Colonel Robert F. Burnham, base commanding officer.

Mr. Summers praised Lockbourne's cooperation and efficiency as manifested in its "share-the-ride" set-up, and comprised its 4.3 riders per car average with the regional average of 2.8 and the district average of 2.9.

Complimenting all personnel who have taken an active part in the program, Mr. Summers said that Lockbourne's organization often is pointed out as being highly efficient and commendable.

In accepting the certificate, Col. Burnham vowed that the endeavor of Lockbourne would not stop during the war emergency.

other purposes. He seldom came to the White House.

I think most of his appointments were the results of notes he was accustomed to send to Mr. Roosevelt, notes not confined to recommending his "fine young men" for the guiding and directing legal staffs of all the government departments, but sometimes on matters of policy also.

At any rate, during the Roosevelt years, the White House accumulated a mass of notes from Frankfurter and Frankfurter accumulated control of legal interpretation within the government in behalf of his opinions on practically all subjects, for his young men generally worshipped or at least granted superior respect to his viewpoint.

The Frankfurter dynasty also broke like a plate which falls to the floor. When Mr. Truman came in, he simply pushed it off the table. A different result could hardly have been expected.

When one opinion on law and policy prevails throughout government—no matter how good or bad that opinion is—the scales of justice have been permanently tipped to one side, and one side only. It is therefore no longer justice. It does not weigh rightness and wrongness. It orders what has already been decided. It is autocratic and Hitleresque.

A long time may be required before the full effect of the new change in legal appointments may be apparent, but it is already beginning to be evident within various bureau legal divisions.

Richard Lee McDonald, Amanda, posted $10 bond in Washington C. H. police court, Tuesday, on charges of reckless operation of a motor vehicle.

INSURANCE PAYMENTS AMOUNT TO $23,522,000

COLUMBUS, May 24—Ohio families received $23,522,000 in life insurance death benefit payments under 23,846 policies during the first three months of this year, the Institute of Life Insurance reported today.

"These payments reflect the greater war mortality under the intensified activity on all war fronts," the Institute said. "The payments in this state were 25.1 percent greater than those of the same period of 1944 entirely due to war caused deaths."

"The civilian death rate on the home front has shown a material decrease under a year ago. Nationally, this has meant many millions of dollars are going to the families of service men killed in action or who died in service."

"These payments are in addition to those made under National Service Life Insurance," the Institute reported.

Dan Culpin Gets His Second Wind

Dan Culpin got his plowing done in record time this year. He was sitting on his porch, enjoying a well-deserved glass of beer, while Bob Wirts, his neighbor, still had over an acre to go.

It burned Bob up, seeing Dan relaxed while he worked. So he'd stop and have a glass of cider—and make out that he was in no hurry anyway.

"And that was the trouble," Dan explained to me. "I kept on going till I got my second wind; and saved my rest until the job was done. He stopped to rest—and he never got his second wind."

From where I sit, there's a moral there for all of us. We've been working hard to win this war. A little rest may look awfully tempting. But by keeping going, by never letting up, we can count on getting our second wind that will overcome weariness and see us through to Victory.

MANAGER FOR WASHINGTON

A familiar idea bobs up again in Washington, arousing interest and discussion as usual. It proposes to establish a general manager for all federal employees, with authority to overrule agency heads and methods of handling personnel, but not meddling with policy. It is said to be fathered by Chairman Ramspeck of Georgia, of the House civil service committee, who has incubated the idea for several years, and the President is described as "interested." The general idea is better management and cooperation of the various units in the executive department.

This is indeed a concept noble in purpose. Whether it is also practical in execution is another question. Washington is a critter with one head and a thousand tails. From the time of the foundation of our government, conscientious and constructive-minded executives have been struggling to make all those tails wiggle in the same direction, with very incomplete success.

To an outsider, most of the trouble seems to arise from an excess of offices and jobs, all using up space and getting in each other's way, and then building more offices and hiring more men, and so on without end, everybody creating more work for everybody else to do. But we might be wrong about that. At any rate, government has been, and is now, and will presumably continue to be, the eternal miracle of civilization. It manages to survive and function in spite of everything.

OUTDOOR MOVIES

DRIVE-IN theaters will become much more numerous after the war, according to the expectations of men in the business. There are now about 100; theater men say that before long there will be at least 2,000.

These out-door movie houses which you attend by sitting in your car date back only to 1933, when one was built in Camden, N. J. Those were depression days; and what with the lack of money and the suspicion that this was just another fad, like miniature golf, the outdoor theater idea, did not grow very fast. After the war, however, this, like everything else, is expected to be different.

The idea of bringing entertainment to customers may be extended. Perhaps this is the long-awaited solution to the problem of how to get people to church.

Even if Hitler has escaped in disguise, he could not stay hidden very long. For one thing, no power on earth could keep him from talking.

What to Do About Peace | Victory Can Be Terrific
Is Problem, Says Writer | Liability for the Winner

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—This P-E-A-C-E with Europe that is about to come true—what are we going to do with it?

We knew what to do with W-A-R, when we got around to the doing.

War was a relatively simple business. It meant simply killing as many of the enemy as quickly as possible, by every conceivable means.

It meant turning out as many weapons for killing as we could. It meant roar and fury and a terrible kind of exhilaration.

War was concrete. It was action. Peace is inaction! Confusion! Devastation! Bewilderment! And there is even fear of the very forces of destruction we have turned loose. What's to be done now—that Germany is finished? What do we do next?

Nobody knows! There's Japan, of course. Another war to be fought. Some military authorities in Washington say the war with Japan will be shorter than expected. Not because the Japanese will give up, but because the United States, and all the Allies, viewing the desolation of Europe, realize that victory can become a staggering liability for the victor.

Prostrate countries must be propped up again if the world is to go on. And it is we—the United States—who become responsible for much of the propping.

A long war with Japan would entail the killing of thousands of American invaders. It would also add another prostrate country—this time Japan.

THE SHARPEST CRITICS of Mr. Roosevelt must admit that

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 24—"A complete cabinet shake-down is coming. State and Treasury in addition to agriculture, justice and labor will surely be involved."

For the present, the 23 man cabinet mushroom, which Mr. Truman inherited from Mr. Roosevelt, is being slowly trimmed to a wieldy ten. Heads of various independent war and administrative agencies had been invited to cabinet discussions by the late president, and as a result, the meetings lately have resembled a mob of stockholders rather than a decorous assembly of a board of directors.

In this 23-man cabinet, furthermore, Mr. Roosevelt had a coterie of ear-whisperers—or they had him. After each session, those who fancied themselves as favorites would come up and whisper in his ear the real business of their departments. He actually had a receiving line of ear-whisperers after each cabinet session, each waiting his turn for the ear.

This evidence of mutual distrust in the cabinet had reached such proportions near the end that Mr. Roosevelt, on one occasion, informed an official:

"I cannot take your subject up at a cabinet meeting because I know at least two would tell a newspaperman and I cannot afford to have it leak."

Mr. Truman favors table-talking over ear-whispering, and is picking men not only that he can trust but who may trust each other.

But this is not the biggest change being worked up inside. A personnel dynasty had been built up within the government. It was headed by Mr. Roosevelt's administrative assistant, William H. McReynolds. He chose the heads of all the important bureaus, and the bureau chiefs whom he selected, in turn, carried out his will in selecting their subordinates.

These were not political appointees (Democratic party) as much as personal choices of various people around Mr. Roosevelt. He himself did not have much time for the matter, and left everything to McReynolds, who allowed himself full leeway in setting up a super-regime reaching into every government bureau.

Mr. McReynolds was dropped by Mr. Truman soon after taking office. He may have pondered a while about leaving, but then departed silently. His departure signified the end of this method of choice for promotion and pay in government service.

Bureau heads hereafter will be chosen by Mr. Truman himself and they in turn will be allowed to choose men with whom they can work. I suspect the new postmaster general Bob Hannegan will keep an eye on this matter for the Democratic party.

There was another clique which had long tenure and amazing growth under Mr. Roosevelt—the Frankfurter machine. Each government bureau, no matter how small or simple, generally has a legal counsel or staff, and supreme court justice Frankfurter was instrumental in choosing the key men for nearly all of these. In his time at Harvard Law school he had amassed personal connections with an army of young lawyers of his school of legal thought.

Contrary to general public suspicion, I do not believe Mr. Frankfurter was the mentor of the late president in the sense that he sat over his shoulder for this and (Continued on Page Four)

The Symptoms and Treatment Of Parkinson's Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PARKINSON'S disease or paralysis agitans is a chronic disorder which occurs in older persons for the most part. However, it may occur following encephalitis or inflammation of the brain, which in turn often develops after attacks of influenza.

In more than 200 patients studied by Doctor Roland M. Klemme of St. Louis, injuries accounted for a few cases of paralysis agitans. Hardening of the arteries of the brain was responsible for the condition in four of the patients, while in more than two-thirds the disorder was produced by encephalitis. In about one-fifth of the patients no cause could be found. Men had the disorder about twice as often as women.

Symptoms of Disease
The symptoms of paralysis agitans consist of an increase in sweating, a disturbance of the gait or walking, an increase in the amount of saliva, a set appearance of the face and stiffness of the muscles. The patients affected with this condition have a tremor or twitching of the hands, shaking of the head and a shuffling gait.

The treatment of paralysis agitans has been carried out by using various drugs with the hope that they would relax the muscles and relieve the twitching and other symptoms. Such drugs as hyosine have been used. Belladonna has also been employed, particularly a variety known as Bulgarian belladonna. A part of the vitamin B-complex known as vitamin B-6 or pyridoxine has been given in large doses by injection with reported improvement in some cases.

Operation Used
Doctor Klemme has used an operation on his patients suffering from paralysis agitans, and he found that in more than three-fourths of them, improvement resulted and restoration of the action of the muscles occurred. A certain area of the brain known as the premotor cortex is the site of the operation. By cutting this part of the brain, he thinks that nerve impulses may be kept from passing down from the brain to other parts of the nervous system.

In carrying out this operation, of course, the premotor cortex must be carefully marked off and then cut. It is necessary to remove part of the skull to reach the brain area.

In outlining the motor area of the brain or the area which controls movement, stimulation with an electric current is employed. An electric knife is used to cut the premotor cortex.

Of course, this operation is one which must be carried out by a surgeon experienced in surgery of the nervous system. However, Parkinson's disease is responsible for such great disability and interference with activity that the operation would appear to be well worthwhile in those cases selected by the surgeon as the type which might respond.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

On Lucienne Thayer's wedding day, even the weather conformed to Thayer standards: Crisp and clear, with a hint of frost in the morning, and a golden sun at noon.

In the big house, Lucienne was sitting up in bed, a shell-pink satin bedjacket over her shoulders, a pink ribbon in her gold hair, breakfasting as heartily as a young peasant.

In the Thayer hospital, Dr. Ralph Kramer was on clinic duty.

In his flat on Fish Wharf alley, Johnny Sermalino had been fighting with his wife, Carman—and was debating now whether to show up at the plant today.

Howard Thayer was supremely happy, because his child was happy. He opened the door of Lucienne's bedroom and stood there, smiling at her. Lucienne... He thought of her mother, the vivacious little French girl he'd loved so wildly. "Be happy, Lucienne, my darling. Be happy and safe forever."

Gail was spending the morning at the Thayer house, helping Agnes who had gone to pieces. Gail took on the burden of directing the caterers, the florists, the photographer...

Reyna was ensconced in the library, delegated to answer all telephone calls and open last-minute presents. "Now don't worry about me, Gail. I feel fine."

Actually she was responding beautifully to treatment. Gail had great hopes that the anemia would be checked completely.

Reyna opened a white box and took out a huge crystal ashtray with the monogram L.T.K. "I hope you get half as much luck on your wedding," she said, as she jotted down the sender's name in the wedding book.

"I'm afraid I won't even get a husband," Gail said. "I think I'll run up and see Lucienne before I go home."

"It's a good idea," Reyna remarked tartly. "Agnes has been hovering around her all morning. She feels constrained to give Lucienne the Facts of Life—and she's almost dead with embarrassment!"

Gail was living in her little stucco house on Lannock Drive, and she went back there to dress for the wedding. The place was almost empty now, most of her things moved out. By tomorrow night she'd be in her new surroundings.

Her bedroom looked bare and lonely.

On the cedar chest lay a letter she'd written to Burke. Its finality would hurt him, at first. But he'd get over it.

Slowly she bathed and dried herself. She donned the black gabardine suit and a new frilly white organza blouse, which Katie had practically blackmailed her into buying. She fastened the moonstone clip Reyna had given her to the jacket lapel, and put a small black hat on her head.

When Stephen arrived, carrying a box of yellow-brown orchids, his eyes told her that the results were more than satisfactory.

Lucienne made an exquisite bride. As she walked slowly up the aisle, Gail whispered to Steve, "She's like the princess in every child's fairy-tale."

"She's a nice kid," Steve murmured. "She's got good stuff in her, under the spoiled, Princess Royal veneer."

Lucienne had no attendants. This was her day, her hour, and she had wanted no one to impinge on it.

But if this were a great day for Lucienne, it was a greater day for Ralph Kramer, now marrying into the Thayer family! What more could life give him?

You could see by the squariness of his shoulders in the correct morning coat, the lift of his heavy, pug-nacious chin and the oblique glance of his eyes as he came toward Lucienne that he was taking it all in: the crowded pews, the envious glances.

After the bride and groom had left the church, Gail held Stephen back a moment. "Let's wait until your father leaves. I—I haven't the courage to face him."

"You don't need courage," Stephen asserted. "Take a lesson from Ralph!"

"Heaven forbid," she declared. They took a taxi to the Thayer house, which was already overflowing with guests.

A Strauss waltz drifted through the air now. Lucienne and Ralph looked at each other, and without a word, Lucienne moved into his arms.

Gail watched them dancing. And she thought: Ralph really loves her—

Suddenly there was a slow, rolling sound in the distance, like far-off thunder. Gail heard it and paid no attention, nor did Steve who was standing with her in the vest hall.

Howard Thayer, summoned by a servant to the telephone, passed them on his way to the library.

When he came out, almost immediately, the expression on his face was so shocking that Gail cried, "Howard—what's happened?"

He looked at her, as if he did not really see her. "There's been an explosion at the plant!"

"Good heavens!" Gail cried. "That must have been the thunder we heard!"

"They've already called the hospital. Ambulances are on the way." Howard turned to Steve. "Is your father here?"

"No. He and Amos Niles went back to the hospital directly from church. There was some important meeting this afternoon, I believe."

"Then they must both know about it." Howard strode to the hall closet, scooped up a topcoat and hat.

He turned to the door. Gail and Steve ran after him.

Johnny Sermalino had waked up that morning, feeling ugly. He fought with Carman at breakfast and when Nina whimpered he turned on her savagely. "Leave me alone," Carman said boldly. "She's got a cold. Maybe I shouldn't go to the plant today."

"What do I care if you go or stay away?" He shouted irritably. He stood uncertainly near the table, lighting his fifth cigarette of the day.

"Come on, if you're going," Carman snarled.

He glared at her, picked up his lunch box, shoved a pack of cigarettes in his pocket. He was working on the wire wing, and the signs read: Positive! No Smoking!

At the plant there were noises, confusion, and a multiple of smells. The chilling wail of sirens, the searing flame and poisonous smoke, the unearthly shrieks of the workers who were trapped under the crumpled building...

Ambulances came and men in white began working desperately, feverishly over objects on stretchers. There were firemen in gas masks, reporters, families of the trapped workers, and plain morbidity curious onlookers.

And above it all, Gail seemed to hear that last wail, Ta da da da dum, ta dum, ta dum. She'd stripped off her black gabardine jacket, her new hat. The white organza blouse was no longer white, but stained with dirt, soot and blood.

Bodies on stretchers surrounded her, dozens of them, but she could only treat one at a time. Cutting away bits of cloth carefully...

carefully... don't touch the flesh, work gently, your own heart in your mouth... don't hurt them, give them a shot in the arm to ease the pain... give them cigarettes.

A reporter came up to her. She could not even see his face clearly in the smoke-filled, acrid air.

"How did it happen?" he asked. "I don't know. The Fire Chief said one of the workers in the new wing must have lighted a cigarette. There wasn't a single man left in there."

The young reporter became ill. She had no time to be sick. She had no time for anything that concerned herself. She was an automaton with God-given hands, and strength.

Time passed. Seconds, minutes, hours, days—how could you measure time in the face of such human agony?

A policeman approached. "You can't use this ambulance for treatment any longer, miss," he said. "We've got to send it to the hospital. They've found more men under the ruins."

(To be concluded)

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there may be a solidification of assets, talents, resources and opportunities for putting the future and its fortunes on a safe and enduring basis. This by application, concentrated effort, in developing practical plans or policies, with wise sense of duty and obligation both to public and social or domestic dependencies. Clever, unusual or shrewd ideas might be worked out simply and carefully, but with an eye to treacherous entanglements or commitments, particularly with writings or agreements. ## BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

BETTER THAN A PARTIAL

IN ANY form of bridge, whether rubber play, a total point team contest, or a match-point duplicate, it is nearly always more profitable to beat the opponent's doubtful contract at all than to make a part-score contract. That is why in many cases the finest players make business passes of delayed doubles by their partners who had reopened the bidding after the opposition tried to quit below game.

2♥ Pass Pass Dbl

The most important act in the auction on that deal was South's pass of his partner's double. He reckoned, from the opponent's willingness to let the bidding drop at the low level of two, that his partner must have some kind of fair strength which, being a sound overcaller, he refused to act upon until West's pass told him there was some strength opposite him.

South decided that the likelihood of a game in No Trumps was most remote, though he could be sure North stopped the spades. Game at one of the realm minors was far beyond the realm of likelihood, so all he could expect his own side to make was some kind of a partial. Actually, with normal play, the side probably could make 2-No. Trumps or 3-Diamonds, at the former losing three tricks in spades plus two red aces and at the latter one less spade because the third round could be ruffed.

Playing against the 2-Hearts doubled, the North-South pair scored three tricks in hearts, one in diamonds and three in clubs, a total of seven. That set the contract two tricks, producing a score of 500, much better than anything which could have been made by taking the contract away from the other side.

If North bids 1-Heart, East 2-Diamonds and South 4-Hearts, and East leads the club 9, how should North figure out the way to make his contract?

The club is an English merit society and is eligible to those students who make a grade of 3.5 out of a possible 4 points in English.

As examples he gave Abraham Lincoln, John Keats and last he pointed to the boys in service.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a long table at which Miss Miriam Turner, valedictorian of the class, and Miss Carrie Arledge, salutatorian, poured.

TOURNEY FINAL SLATED TONIGHT

Ashville And Perry To Play For High School Title At Ted Lewis Park

Finals of the Pickaway county high school softball tournament will be played at 7 p. m. Thursday in Ted Lewis park County Superintendent George D. McDowell announced late Wednesday. Clashing in the championship game will be Ashville and Perry township. Ashville gained the finals by defeating Monroe in the first game and New Holland in the semi-finals. Perry downed Scioto 1-0 in a game shortened to 5 1/2 innings by rain and edged Walnut 5-4 in a semi-final contest.

Following the game trophies will be presented to the winner and runner-up teams.

The tournament was scheduled to end last week but rain delayed most of the games. The first two contests were the only ones played as scheduled. All the rest were held up.

COLONELS KEEP NARROW LEAD; BIRDS BLASTED

By United Press

The Louisville Colonels retained first place in the American Association standings, today, but only a few scant percentage points protected their lead over hard-pressing Milwaukee and Indianapolis.

All three clubs won yesterday to maintain their 1-2-3 ranking. Louisville smashed out 15 hits to defeat Minneapolis, 9 to 4, while Milwaukee and Indianapolis took contests from Columbus and St. Paul respectively.

Milwaukee's Floyd Speer held Columbus to nine scattered hits and two runs in the first inning to give the Brewers their 13th win of the season.

Third-place Indianapolis trounced St. Paul 8 to 1, clinching the Saints for the circuit cellar position.

At Kansas City, the Toledo Mud Hens used six pitchers in an attempt to stop the Blues' offensive but went down in defeat, 9 to 5.

Today's games: Columbus at Milwaukee, Toledo at Kansas City, Indianapolis at St. Paul and Louisville at Minneapolis. All are night games.

COOPER SOLD TO BOSTON TEAM FOR $100,000

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 24—Rebillion Morton Cooper, key man in one of baseball's greatest dynasties, left a tottering world championship St. Louis Cardinal team behind him today to seek his fortune with the perennial laggards of Boston—the Braves.

The big fellow, who walked out on the team he had led to three straight National League pennants, passed up a chance at a world series cut in a long and involved wrangle over a $150,000 a year pay raise, moving in with a team that hasn't won a pennant since 1914 and hasn't been in the first division since 1934.

Whether the trading of Cooper to Boston for nondescript pitcher Charley Barrett and a reported $100,000 in cash signaled the break-up of the three-time National League pennant winners remained to be seen. Barrett, an off-and-on National League wayfarer since 1937, never has won more than 12 games in a season and usually has lost more games than he has won.

Cooper, on the other hand, has been the National League's most consistent winner for three straight seasons, during which he

FBI CURBS SURGERY CHEATS

"Faces for Sale," the inside story of how racketeers tried to defeat justice by the use of plastic surgery, is another exciting story in "The FBI in Peace and War" series, to be heard on Saturday. How the G-men successfully combatted this sinister perversion of science forms a surprising climax to the crime drama which is based on Frederick L. Collins' noted book, "The FBI in Peace and War."
